Joel Sarakula was born in Sydney but now operates out of London. His debut UK album The Golden Age picked up some airplay and got him stage time on festival stages around the UK, but the lead single off his second album (due out in November) hints at bigger things to come. "Northern Soul" is that rare thing: a pop song that would sound equally at home on Radios 1, 2 and 6. The archive-footage video's notched up more than 150,000 views on YouTube and it's lovely.
